INDIGENOUS COMMUNITY MEDIA AS RESISTANCE MEMORY BUILDING IN BOLIVIA
América Latina Hoy, 78, April 2018, pp. 17-36

Despite the broad development of the analysis about the organization of union and popular communication in Bolivia, indigenous communication and its forms of organization have not been analyzed in depth as ways of memory building. This work aims to develop the historical and actual action of indigenous communication networks as political and cultural issues, organized in time around their own practices and identities, cosmologies and cosmogonies.

Key words: indigenous communication; community media; memory; resistance; Bolivia.

RISE AND DECLINE OF GOOD LIVING IN THE NATIONAL DEVELOPMENT PLANNING IN ECUADOR (2007-2021)
América Latina Hoy, 78, April 2018, pp. 37-54

This article presents a hermeneutical analysis of the last four development plans of Ecuador that cover the period 2007-2021. The objective of this analysis is to assess the variable real importance that the concept of good living has had as a guide for development public policies in Ecuador, in the context of the Citizen Revolution implemented by Alianza PAIS under the leadership of Rafael Correa (2007-2017) and Lenin Moreno (2017-2021).

Key words: good living; national development plans; Ecuador; hermeneutics; Citizen Revolution.

 ASSYMETRIC WAR METAPHORS. PACIFICATION AS A TROPE IN BRAZIL AND ARGENTINA
América Latina Hoy, 78, April 2018, pp. 55-72

The paper propounds a genealogy of «pacification» as a trope, from imperial military discourses to its adoption in security policies rethorics in Latin America, specially in Brazil and Argentina. From a cultural and communicational approach, we focus on the linguistic resources and discursive operations that are recovered and resignified in order to produce meaning on the dynamics of crime, violence and State response to this phenomena.

Key words: pacification; genealogy; discourse; trope; security policies.

DWELLINGS FOR THE SELF. NOTES OF ART AND TESTIMONY IN HANNAH ARENDT'S
THINKING AND NORA STREJILEVICH'S WRITING
América Latina Hoy, 78, April 2018, pp. 73-86

In this article we study Hannah Arendt's notion of art as a habitable abode [morada habitable], which she analyzes in a brief chapter of the essay The Human Condition (1968). Secondly, we analyze a short story (a fictional testimony about the State terrorism in Argentina) written by the Argentinean author Nora Strejilevich. The starting point in this story is, precisely, Arendt's idea about art, which Strejilevich materializes in three important abodes that makes us live: our body, our house and our country. Our research question is about how the author deals with this idea about art, and how it corresponds to Arendt's idea.

Key words: art; testimony; body; country; exile.

DANCING WITH ZIZEK: ORIGINS AND EVOLUTION OF THE DIGITAL CUMBIA IN BUENOS AIRES
América Latina Hoy, 78, April 2018, pp. 87-104

This article deals with one of the most original and innovative musical expressions of the new century: the so-called «digital cumbia». It is a new music label used in recent times as a way to describe a postmodern and digitally constructed form of cumbia, which is being performed by a new generation of Argentinian musicians who have grown up in the Internet era. The article traces the history of this particular type of cumbia, paying particular attention to the role of digital technology in the development and evolution of this musical scene.

Key words: cumbia; popular music; digital culture; Internet; globalization.

WHEN DOES A PARTY SYSTEM CHANGE? AN ELECTORAL ANALYSIS PERSPECTIVE FROM THE COLOMBIAN CASE

América Latina Hoy, 78, April 2018, pp. 107-126

This article looks at the change in the Colombian party system, using an electoral analysis perspective. Using a principal component analysis, it identifies the territorial structures in the electoral behaviour of the country for the Senate elections over the past two decades. Results show that the 2003 political reform encouraged the reorganization of the party system among the traditional liberal/conservative cleavage, now expressed by a multi-party system. The 2014 elections suggest a deeper change.

Key words: political parties; party system; Colombia; elections; territorial analysis.

MULTILATERALISM OR BILATERALISM: DIFFERENCES BETWEEN CHILE AND ARGENTINA'S INCORPORATION PATTERNS INTO INTERNATIONAL TRADE

América Latina Hoy, 78, April 2018, pp. 127-147

This article investigates if the strategies adopted by Chile and Argentina have changed the economic complexity of their exports. Results show that a higher international integration has not been accompanied by changes in the foreign trade structure. Although Chile has expanded its bilateral network, exports remained concentrated in low economic complexity products. On the other hand, Argentina also maintained its commodity exporter profile, but increased its participation in complex sectors as part of the MERCOSUR.

Key words: Argentina; Chile; multilateralism; bilateralism; economic complexity; development.
